How the nine days run

28 NOV

SATURDAY

Pickup after lunch, then imperial Delhi

We collect you from your Delhi hotel in the early afternoon. Qutub Minar, the twelfth-century victory tower, then Humayun's Tomb in the late light — the Mughal garden-tomb that the Taj was built to answer. Back to your hotel afterwards.

The Taj at sunrise, Agra Fort, then Jaipur

An early start for the Taj Mahal as the gates open, with your Agra guide. Then Agra Fort, where Shah Jahan spent his last years looking at what he had built. Late morning we set off for Jaipur, about 240 km. Fatehpur Sikri can be added on this leg — see the note below.

The two things you left open

FATEHPUR SIKRI — 30 NOVEMBER

Yes, it can be added, and it barely moves the price: about ₹ 1,464 (€ 13) for the two tickets. There is no extra vehicle charge, as it sits directly on the Agra–Jaipur road. What it does cost is time — see the timing note overleaf.

AIRPORT TRANSFER — 6 DECEMBER

No additional charge. The vehicle is already with you that day, so the drop to Delhi airport is simply part of the day's running. Tell us the flight time and we will work backwards from it. The early transfer on 3 December has been left out, as you asked.

05 — OUR READING OF THE PLAN

Timing — what we would flag

You asked us to look at the plan honestly and raise only what actually matters. Three things, and the rest runs comfortably.

30 NOVEMBER IS THE ONE FULL DAY

Taj Mahal at opening, Agra Fort, then 240 km to Jaipur. That works — but adding Fatehpur Sikri puts roughly two more hours into it, and you would reach Jaipur after dark. It is still very doable; we would simply leave the Taj at first light rather than lingering, and take the Fatehpur Sikri stop at around 11:00. If you would rather not rush, the alternative is to skip it.

2 DECEMBER, JAIPUR TO DELHI

Five to six hours, and the last hour into Delhi is unpredictable. We would suggest leaving Jaipur by mid-morning so the arrival is not late. Nothing needs to change in the plan itself.

MONUMENT CLOSING DAYS — ALL CLEAR

Your Taj morning falls on Monday 30 November; the Taj closes on Fridays only, so you are fine. The Red Fort closes on Mondays and your Delhi days are Saturday, Thursday, Friday, Saturday and Sunday — also fine. Jama Masjid sits on a Thursday, which keeps it clear of Friday prayers.

Your questions, answered

Is it the same driver and the same vehicle throughout?

Yes. One English-speaking chauffeur and one car for all nine days, from the pickup on 28 November to the final drop on 6 December. That is what this quotation is built on.

Are there daily kilometre or working-hour limits?

The price covers the route and the days set out above, with no daily cap applied within it. The car is not on unlimited disposal beyond the itinerary; any substantial additional running would be quoted separately and agreed with you first, never charged as a surprise.

What is included in the vehicle price?

Fuel, tolls, parking and interstate permits. There are no hidden extras.

And what is not included?

Hotels and meals for you, as instructed; entry to the Taj Mahal mausoleum chamber (₹ 200 per person, payable at the monument if you wish to go inside); tips; and anything not listed.

The times in the itinerary are ours to move — tell us how you would rather shape any day and we will rebuild it around you. If the two quotations look right, a reply is enough to hold the dates while you decide.
